Late Norval Foster
A vanishing breed

By JEAN NAUTA
Norval Foster came to Stouffville from Mount Albert where he'd managed a farm for Stuart Thompson.

Tucked away in a small corner of Lemonville, formerly the Neehorn Place, Mr. Foster once again took up farming by the old-fashioned, manual method with which he was familiar.

He was raised in Baldwin, south of Sutton. At the early age of fifteen, he left home to "go work on the farm".

A steady and loyal employee, Mr. Foster knew how to give an honest day's work.

From early morning until late at night, he tilled the fields, mowed the hay, all minus the benefit of modern equipment.

sweat-soaked shirt sticking to his stocky back, he gained much pleasure out of sharing a joke.

He'd earlier been a "caller" at barn dances. He was also an avid euchre player.

An easy visitor, Norval liked talking about his experiences with friends, especially his home

Birthday

Congratulations to Mrs. Cora Hamilton, a resident at the Extended Care Home in Oakville on the occasion of her 93rd birthday celebrated Feb. 26.

Gord and Kay Wagg, Gayle and Mario Carlo and Ryan La Duca all of Stouffville helped Kay's mother celebrate the milestone. Mrs. Hamilton's birthday falls on Feb. 29 remedies. None were ever quite convinced to try them.

Mr. Foster had been known to treat boils with turpentine or shingles with gasoline. His medical technology tended to be somewhat radical!

While a resident of the Elm Street seniors apartment in Stouffville, Norval would often attend farm auctions where he'd buy such items as hoes, rakes and axes. Later, he'd fix them up and return them to good use. Some he took to Woodville on Brougham where they'd be sold for a few pennies profit.

Norval Foster never asked or expected a lot out of life. It didn't take possessions or wealth to bring him happiness. A few minutes sharing old-told stories was his greatest joy.

March is one of the reasons Goodyear invented all-season tires.
