Wedding elegance at Cullen Barns

Different bridal looks worn by Tim McNeil (left), Leslie Stronach (centre) and Sheila McNeil (right) illustrate the elegance of wedding fashions. Tails for Tim, a traditional gown for Leslie and the quiet good looks of this dress worn by Sheila are part of the entire wedding day celebration for any couple.

All the pomp and ceremony associated with a wedding was displayed in fine fashion by local residents last Saturday, when they donned the latest in bridal fashions for a show at Markham's Cullen Country Barns. Brides, grooms and attendants displayed the latest fashions in a colorful procession that highlighted this year's looks. In this photo, Bob Smith and Cindy McNeil walk down the aisle after taking their vows.
