Farewell offering to mates

ANDREA VALERIE GRUNDY
SDSS Columnist

As the school year draws to a close, the graduating students are all too aware of what lies ahead for them.

Although on one hand this is a joyous celebration, it is also a sad time as the students say tearful goodbyes to the friends they've had for the past five years.

Each person will be going their separate way and will have to start all over again.

The feelings of fear, excitement and anticipation run free.

When speaking to different people from the graduating class, one finds that they all remember the same thing about their high school lives.

Of course they remember the countless number of assignments and tests, but mostly they recall the togetherness that students and teachers showed when something really needed to be done.

They also remember the school spirit that was quite abundant when they entered Grade 9. Some even explained that this was the reason they decided to stand up against some authorities.

No one wants the students now entering the school to think that the school has always been so institutional.

As the old students go out, they do it with concern for those entering and are trying their best to make it a pleasant place for the new.

In closing, those who are still going to the high school want those who are leaving to know that their attempts have been appreciated and they will be remembered fondly.

So, to all those who are leaving, we wish them all the best in their new adventures.

Reunion a success

The 2nd annual Hood Reunion (family of the late George and Mae Hood) was held at the home of Aylmer and Peggy Hood on Sunday, June 4.

Those attending included Clarence and Velma Hood and family, Herb and Gwen Hood and family, Aylmer and Peggy Hood and family, and family members of the late Dorothy Hood and Fred Timbers.

Next year, the reunion will be held at the home of Clarion and Barbara Hood, Listowel.

United Way picks chairman

The United Way of York Region has named Richmond Hill resident Cam Smith as its annual fundraising campaign chairman.

Smith has set his goals for Campaign '89, and they are quite optimistic. He is aiming to raise $2.2 million, which is a half-million dollars more than last year's $1.7 million.

"It's a tough goal, but with nearly 40 community organizations relying on us, we're going to try our hardest to reach it," commented Smith.

Heading a fundraising campaign is a new experience for Smith, but he certainly is capable of the responsibility, after a career in banking for 43 years and a second career as a banking consultant, as well as being a dedicated volunteer to many organizations for many years.

Although Campaign '89 doesn't start until Sept. 18, Smith is hard at work reviewing the 40 member agencies, to determine how much money each will receive and setting individual goals for each municipality.
