Homes tour highlights style

Six Stouffville area homes are being highlighted this year in the Latcham Gallery's fourth annual Tour of Homes being held Sunday, Sept. 17 from 1-5 p.m. A popular annual event, this year's tour offers visitors a slice of the various architectural styles found in the area. At left is the Armstrong/Williams home, a variation of Queen Anne Revival architecture. Below is the Riemer home which offers three acres of naturally landscaped grounds complete with pond, swimming pool, tennis courts, log cabin and guest house. Homes tour participants choose their own routes from a map printed on the back of tour tickets and a stop at Latcham Gallery is included. Tickets are $12 (including refreshments) and are available at the Gallery. For information, call 640-2395.

'Industrial Exposition' of 1889 holds great promise

Here again are some items of interest called up from issues of The Tribune of years gone by: 100 years ago

Sept. 6, 1889: In a few days the great Industrial Exposition, which is to be held at Toronto from the 8th to the 21st of September, will be in full swing and visitors will be flocking to it from all parts of the country.

The entries show that the exhibits in all departments will be larger and better than ever and a long program of special attractions for every day of the Fair has been published.

The annual success of this great show is something remarkable, the people appear to justly take a pride in it and make it the occasion of their annual holiday outing.

50 years ago
Sept. 14, 1939: Over three hundred children and students enrolled in the local school the past ten days, or since the reopening for the fall and winter term following the long summer holidays.

Sept. 10, 1964: The passage of a bylaw at the regular meeting of Stouffville municipal council on Thursday night brought out an accusation by Councillor Wm. Parsons in which he said to Reeve Timbers, "I consider your conduct not ethical with your position and would add that many persons have been suspended from office for similar conduct."

The charge against the Reeve arose regarding certain work which the town agreed to do in regard to storm sewers on the extension west of Rupert Ave. and for which work the owner of the land, Mr. Chivette had agreed on a secured price for his highway frontage land.

The first reading of the bylaw passed without incident but the second brought strong words
