

SKYDOME CARRIER-ED AWAY

Tribune and Economist and Sun carriers enjoyed a day at the Skydome Saturday in appreciation for their hard work Economist and Sun Real Estate Advertising Representative Pauline McNaughton attended the game as a supervisor to, among others, Chad Tennant (right). Staff members of both the Tribune and the Economist and Sun chaperoned the children on their journey downtown.

photos by sjoerd witteveen

Photos / SJOERD WITTEVEEN

John Wood (left) and Mike Berry show who they rooted for at the Blue Jays game last Saturday at the Skydome. They were among 290 carriers who were treated to a Jays game by the Tribune and Economist and Sun. Several times each year the carriers are rewarded for their efforts with a special appreciation day.

Kasey Besson (left), Paula White and Nadine Davenport enjoyed a day off from their busy schedule of delivering papers, attending school and outdoor activities. The carriers had the chance to see an extra-close game between the Blue Jays and the Cleveland Indians.

A few of the carriers take a moment out from watching the game to wave at the camera. These children were among 290 newspaper carriers who enjoyed watching the Blue Jays slip past the Cleveland Indians 3-2 in 11 innings.