Medieval magic transforms library

Children celebrate the middle ages in a time of dragons, knights and enchanted castles

The Whitchurch-Stouffville Public Library stepped back into the middle ages during the March Break last week to allow local children an opportunity to explore the past. A number of activities including puppet shows, plays and live theatre thrilled local kids for the entire week. At left, Chief Executive Officer Marilyn Ferguson poses, in costume, before Rapunzel's Place. Bottom left, Sheila McLeod welcomes children and parents to a puppet show. Mrs. McLeod was instrumental in bringing the week's activities to the children. Bottom right, a member of Meadowsweet Productions entertains children with some juggling. Top right, puppet characters from Beauty and the Beast provide some medieval entertainment. Library officials credit the Stouffville Lions Club with providing much of the funding for the March Break programs. With the local service club's help, says Mrs. McLeod, many of the fun events were a success.
