Home of the week

Located in the northern part of Uxbridge Township, this three bedroom home is the Economist & Sun home of the week. The home takes its vernacular style from Europe. The steep roofline with small dormer windows, the four foot wide solid oak door, the unusual double-pane windows and French doors, as well as the solid brick and construction attest to its origins. Modern features include; oak cabinetry in the kitchen, oak and pine floors, contemporary plumbing fixtures, central vacuum and 200 amp hydro service. The home is nestled among mature spruce and pine trees and a laneway bordered by flowering crabapple trees leads onto the park-like 1.6 acres. There is a four-stall horse barn and three fenced paddocks as well as many riding trails in the area. This country property is listed at $239,900.
