

Special day for girls to focus on science

May 20 is Girls in Science and Technology Day, and to celebrate, young students will be encouraged to pursue careers in these fields.

Grades 7 and 8 female science students will attend a motivating conference hosted by the York Region Board of Education at Seneca College, King Campus.

Keynote speaker Avis Favaro, Global TV health reporter, will discuss her career and the link between science and television.

Other women, including a biochemical engineer, veterinary technician, and respiratory therapist, will give a first-hand insight into their careers.

The afternoon session will focus on the Celebration of the 1992 International Year of space with workshops led by an astronomer, telecommunications engineer and a doctor specializing in human performance in space.

This program is aimed at preparing students for careers in the next century.

Sale helps Amnesty International

Kathryn Hindle, left, chairperson of Group 54 of Amnesty International Markham/Stouffville chapter, displays some of the items available for sale at their garage sale Saturday in Stouffville. Items were sold to help raise money for the group which monitors human rights abuses around the world. Roger Glazin, centre, is the group's treasurer while Jill Grant, right, was at the sale to see what items were available.

BE A POWER SAVER

One day John hopes to build R-2000 homes. But he'll have to go to school first.

And we don't mean high school. Before John, or any builder, can build a home to R-2000 standards, he must take specialized training. Supported by the housing industry, Ontario Hydro, manufacturers and the provincial and federal governments, the R-2000 home is built to a higher standard of new home construction. In fact, because of its energy efficiency, Ontario Hydro offers a $2,000 incentive to purchasers in areas without natural gas service.

R-2000 homes are constructed with a greater attention to detail. The result is a home in which drafts and cold spots are virtually eliminated and moisture build-up in walls and attics is prevented. A heat recovery ventilator (HRV) delivers a steady supply of fresh air, reduces condensation and controls ventilation.

Look for the R-2000 'Better-built home.' It's built by specially trained builders, is individually inspected and is given its own certificate of performance to ensure it meets strict energy efficiency and ventilation standards.

It's a more comfortable home to live in.
