

SDSS student athletes honored at banquet

(From page 20)

Ellis and Scott Ferris were honored for their efforts as co-presidents of the school's Athletic Council.

Team MVPs were as follows: Sarah Cliff, Jason Whitelaw (cross country); Lindsey Haylow, Kevin Nicholls, Les Hartai (boys Midget, Junior, Senior volleyball); ball); Julie Coleman (golf); Jason Reesor, Andrea Crothers (tennis); Melissa Sutin (alpine skiing); Heather McKinnon (girls field hockey); Jenn McGowan, Cynthia Zielonko (badminton); Jenn McCowan (girls slo-pitch); Bill Pride (boys fastball); Andrea Crothers, Alex Jordan (track); Kelly Forsyth, Phil Re Roo (field); Kelly Forsyth (coach's award girls throwing); Brad Hackert (morning hockey).

Jen Crowley, Julie Sandford, Michelle Hofstee and Kelly Sheridan (girls Midget, Junior, Senior volleyball);

The evening was marked by both tributes and frivolity. Teams presented their coaches with gifts including sweat shirts and flowers, while several teachers heaped praise on graduating students who had been a vital part of the school's athletic program in their years of attendance.

First year teacher Louis Blizzard noted the intensity of the SDSS school teams. "I was so impressed with the intensity," said Blizzard. "That's what sports is to me."

Jim Fletcher, veteran Senior boys volleyball team coach, said that this year's team "kept the tradition alive by winning its fourth consecutive DYSSA championship."

Rusty Hick, who coached the SDSS Midget girls basketball to the York Region title, said he used past glory to inspire his team. "I'd just point to the banners on the gym wall (listing past SDSS championship basketball teams)."

On the lighter side, boys physical education head Dave Connell, who was instrumental in having a track and field complex built for the school, was asked by golf coach Rick Dewell when he was going to get the school a golf course.

Blizzard and his weight lifting co-coach John Roberts announced there would be a power lifting club starting at the school this fall.

Teacher Sue Le Roy closed out the night by urging the students to continue their involvement in athletics after they leave high school. "If you can't make the varsity team, then play intra mural sports, they're just as much fun," she said. "And when you get older, there are always company teams and neighborhood teams you can join."

Snooker world champ heading to Stouffville

Former world snooker champion Cliff Thorburn is bringing his act to the Stouffville Legion Hall Sunday, June 14.

Thorburn will play six games at the Ninth Line N. facility, according to Legion zone secretary Bonnie Kingsley-Forfar.

Kingsley-Forfar said Thorburn would also put on a snooker exhibition.

The action begins at noon with tickets costing $10.
