Bylaw needs more scrutiny: Church St. residents

Dear Editor,
In response to Ken Nastor's remarks regarding a home he is building on Church Street in The Tribune June 30 entitled Church St. builder denies his home a 'monster'.

I am the neighbor on Church St., or should I say one of the "newcomers who have barged in to upset the serenity of this peaceful community."

Yes. I must confess, my husband, myself and our six-year-old son drove into Stouffville one day upon moving from Westport, Connecticut and decided to cause havoc on Church Street by purchasing a magnificent old century home, which had been meticulously added onto in 1987 and had a glorious backyard with a pool - our dream home.

Little did we know that "solid citizen" had purchased the adjoining lot a mere 12 hours before we purchased our house and had decided to build their "dream home."

For the last three months we have watched with dismay as the adjacent "dream house" has been constructed. Having just purchased a dream home of our own, we certainly can relate to the excitement of looking forward to this occasion but to build an oversize - a fireplace has had to be eliminated due to extra footage found following several inspections, including one by the town - on such a small lot so that it does nothing but overlook both the neighboring backyards and completely strips them of privacy is to us truly unbelievable.

Because this "dream home" has virtually no yard - a deck is not even permitted - one can only assume that our soon-to-be neighbors have elected to use our yard to give them a feeling of land when they look out the window. When we look to the other direction of our property we can see all the way to Manitoba Street through at least six yards - we can no longer see any part of our neighbor's home in the opposite direction.
