Toronto, Montreal populations among top 10 in North America

Q. I know that Toronto and Montreal are Canada's largest cities, but how do they rank in population compared to other cities in North America and the rest of the world?

er populations than Toronto and Montreal are listed in order as: Mexico City (the second largest city in the world behind Tokyo-Yokohama); New York City; Los Angeles; Chicago; Philadelphia; San Francisco; and Miami.

As for world rankings, Toronto is 62nd, just behind Wuhan, China, while Montreal is 70th (or 69th if you discount Detroit) behind Alexandria, Egypt.

A. Population figures can vary from source to source, and how they're gathered can also vary from country to country, partly because census data can be taken in different years.

However, based on the World Almanac and Book of Facts for 1992, Toronto is the eighth most populated city in North America ranking just behind metropolitan Miami, while Montreal is 10th just behind Detroit.

However, the figures given for Detroit, for some strange reason, also include Windsor, Ont. Take away Windsor's population and Montreal is ninth.

For the record, the North American cities with high-
