FOCUS ON BUSINESS

Ann Chiu-Law serves one of Franklin's valued customers. The company mandate is to form a business partnership with every customer, linking them in turn, to their customers.

Franklin's Printing: committed to its customers

Comparing Franklin's Printing with other franchise print shops would be like comparing the winner of the World Series with the minor leagues. They may be playing the same game, but there is no question which you would consult about pitching and hitting.

The professionalism in every aspect of the operation is apparent as soon as you walk through the door. That's not surprising when you meet the owners Ed and Ann Law - professionals themselves who were on the other side of the counter as end-users before taking on the Markham franchise one year ago.

Not content to simply sell products and services, Ed explained that their aim at Franklin's Printing is to form a business partnership with each and every customer, to work together to fulfill their business requirements and perhaps solve their problems, to share their knowledge of marketing and technology so that both parties will benefit.

"It's the extra things we help you to do that makes us different," said Ed. Customers are greeted by friendly, knowledgeable staff in an attractive, spacious showroom. Services go far beyond the standard printing, duplication, graphics and desktop publishing to include things like marketing research and design. The relationship between the two sides becomes that of an idea exchange as opposed to a one-way service contract. "We're in the business of providing a linkage between our customer and our customer's customers," reads the firm's mission statement. "As our customers' partner, we can take care of their promotional needs as well as the day-to-day office needs so that their time is freed up to focus on selling their products and services," Ed explained. It's the way of the future for both mega-corporations who are downsizing in an effort to save money, and for the home-based professional who is looking for exposure and a cost-efficient way to run their business. Let the specialized service providers do what they do best in order to free up time to make a profit.

"We want to earn your trust, earn your confidence, then become your business partner," Ed said. "It's the only way both we and our customers will excel."

The Franklin's organization has been in operation for 20 years and there are 120 Franklin's Printing franchises across North America.

For more information about how Franklin's Printing can help your business to succeed, call 470-1122 or visit the showroom at 501 Alden Rd. in Markham.
