Council

BIA wins two-day trash collection concession

TRACY KIBBLE
 Staff Reporter

In order to appease the 15 restaurants in the downtown business strip, local politicians will offer BIA merchants a special, twice-a-week garbage collection service. The town's 1993 revised garbage collection plan - geared to chop about $100,000 from its annual $516,500 waste management budget next year - created an unsettling stir among downtown restaurant owners last week. The new plan, which includes a three-bag limit per household and business starting this fall, left BIA restaurant owners holding the bag on what to do with a week's worth of trash with no space to store it. In light of the concerns, public works director Paul Whitehouse met with BIA members last Friday and recommended council ease up on its once-a-week proposal and compromise with a special two-day-a-week service exclusive to the BIA.

In order to meet the town's imposed three-bag limit per pick-up, Whitehouse said restaurant owners will require tough, personal waste management education lessons.

He said since the average local restaurant churns out about 15 bags of trash each week owners will have to seek ways to slash that number in half in order to meet the town's reduction target. Ward 2 councillor Stephen Bellerby, who has cited Stouffville BIA businesses as being spoiled with daily pick-up, called the special two-day service a perk that taxpayers will have to subsidize.

He requested a cost figure for the "higher level of service."

Town chief administrative officer, Merlin Dewing told council a "wild estimate" of added costs to accommodate the BIA is about $8,000, but admitted it is difficult to determine a site-specific fee. Several councillors opposed Bellerby's view, stating the two-day-a-week service is still a much reduced service from the original five-day collection. Officials granted the twice-a-week BIA collection pick-up and will ask staff for a progress report in 12 months.

New problems with bag limit

Whitchurch-Stouffville homeowners who lodge tenants in their basements may want to trash the town's new garbage collection policy.

Local politicians approved a revised garbage collection bylaw this week, which among other things, places a weekly limit, starting this fall, on the number of bags or containers each homeowner can send to

McCallion here Sept. 1

Outspoken Mississauga mayor, Hazel McCallion will bring her brand of forthright wisdom to Stouffville Sept. 1.

For the first time, the Whitchurch-Stouffville Chamber of Commerce and Stouffville Downtown (BIA) have combined to bring McCallion to town for a presentation called 'How to Run a Small Business in a Recession.'

Tickets for the event are $20, and it will be held at Sleepy Hollow Golf and Country Club at 6:30 p.m. Hot and cold hors d'oeuvres will be served with tea and coffee.

ELVIS: 'Live' in Stouffville

On Sunday, Aug. 15, beginning at 12 noon, Elvis Presley will appear to the Stouffville devoted.

On the anniversary of the King's death in 1977, the Stouffville Country Flea Market presents Memories of Elvis, starring Deke Rivers.

Rivers, an Elvis impersonator with three years of hip-gyrating and sweat-soaked scarf-flinging behind him, will perform three separate shows of 14 songs each at the flea market.
