Parents will have say in budget

Parents and taxpayers can have their say in the 1994 York Region Board of Education budget.

The first budget meeting was held last week and committee chair Paul Bennett said he'd like to aim for a balanced budget with no tax hike but if the board can't meet this target he prepared to justify the tax increase to taxpayers. The board raised taxes by 6.9 per cent this year.

He is suggesting a value-for-money audit of either a division of the board or for a number of programs to ensure money is being well spent.

Employees might also be asked for their cash-saving suggestions, and a feasibility study is underway on how the board can best request input from employees. Bennett would like to see more cooperation between the public and separate systems in York Region to save both money and manpower. Already the boards are working together on transportation, but this could be expanded to joining forces in purchasing department and in some aspects of curriculum.

Public meetings to be held in the north, south, east and west are being arranged to allow more people to sit in on budget deliberations and to give opinions either verbally or in writing. The first public session is at Newmarket High School Oct. 13 with a second meeting set for Nov. 10 at Thornhill Secondary School. Anyone wishing to make a presentation can call Christine Lewis at 969-7170, ext. 273 at least 10 days before the meeting to be placed on the speakers list or to receive background budget information.
