Canada Post doesn't always get its way

Dear Editor,
 In a few days, more 1,500 people signed a petition to keep the Stouffville Post Office open to serve local residents. This action seems to have made no difference to the decision-makers of Canada Post, who feel they are secure in their monopoly. I would like to point out that they have not always succeeded in doing things their own way.
 In June of 1991, the people of Dunville, Newfoundland, were informed by Canada Post that maintaining a traditional post office in their town was not an option. The people of Dunville, headed by their mayor, Ray Murphy, and helped by John Crosbie, Minister of Fisheries, fought this decision. The Dunville Post Office is still open, offering complete service to residents, including Saturday morning service. I am certain of my facts; I talked, by phone, on the morning of Sept. 25 to a lady in that post office.

Thanksgiving Food Drive set to go

Dear Editor,
 The Annual Thanksgiving Food Drive this year is from Tuesday, Oct. 5 to Thanksgiving Monday, Oct. 11. A special bag for your food donations will be enclosed in the Oct. 5 edition of the newspaper.
 During this drive, donations of non-perishable foods such as canned meat, fish, fruit, vegetables, fruit juice, stew, soup, and pork and beans, also peanut butter, spaghetti sauce, dry cereals, hot cereals and powdered milk, would be appreciated. We cannot, however, accept purchases from bulk food outlets. Donations can be dropped off at the Fire Hall, A & P, and IGA stores, Care & Share Shop, or the Tribune and Sun offices.
 During 1993, an average of 200 people have been served each month. We appreciate the support of all organizations and residents of this community who have seen the need and responded generously. Please call 640-4707 for more information. Happy Thanksgiving.
