Crime rates drop across York Region

Preventative patrolling has proved worthwhile as crime rates dropped in York Region this year.

In the first six months of this year, police noted a downswing in some local crime categories.

An overall decrease of 8.5 per cent in the total number of criminal occurrences was reported by Chief Bryan Cousineau to the Police Services Board last month.

Other areas that appear to be improving:

- weapons occurrences fell 20 per cent,
- traffic violations have decreased 17 per cent,
- crimes against property saw an 11 per cent drop.

However, offences involving drugs jumped by 20 per cent while.

The numbers showed so far this year demands for police service dropped in comparison to 1992 numbers.

York Regional Police initiated a street beat service where officers are assigned to visit schools, malls, main streets and businesses on a regular basis.
