Bank helps United Way

They're dressing down for the United Way at the Stouffville branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Employees of the Main St. bank will pay $3 for the right to come to work in jeans and t-shirts on Fridays through Nov. 25. It's part of the branch's attempt to raise funds for this year's United Way Campaign. The casual dress incentive is one of four money making schemes being used by the branch. Staff members are also selling raffle tickets on a mountain bike purchased at near cost price from Stouffville's Boyd's Source for Sports outlet. The draw is to take place Nov. 25 at the bank.

The bank's campaign coordinator Kathleen Wilson is confident her staff can far surpass last year's total of $1,029.

SHOULDN'T WE BE DOING YOUR HAIR?

COLLEEN MURPHY is the educational director at Svengali. Her career began with years of British training. She is actively involved in the fashion world through her contributions to such shows as FASHION CARES, THE HOLT RENFREW FALL SHOW and the TORONTO READY TO WEAR SHOW. Her dress work is seen on runway models for OSCAR DE LA RENTA, YVES ST. LAURENT and GIORGIO ARMANI. Colleen's skills both technically and creatively combine to design the ultimate look for her clients. We are extremely proud to have her as a member of our artistic team.
