

Festival of Bells offers Stouffville residents a chance to ring in the season

Ring in the Christmas season with friends and neighbors at the Festival of Bells, which takes place Friday, Dec. 4 at 7 p.m.

Whitchurch-Stouffville's salute to this special time of year begins with the official lighting of the big tree in the town square, with communal carols and entertainment all part of the fun.

Students at Summitview Public School, members of the Music Mania Chorus and Stouffville's own Lawnie Wallace will all contribute their own brand of musical magic to the proceedings, and seasonal refreshments will be served during the event.

Debby Doherty and Corinne Roberts eye the items for sale at the craft sale for Cystic Fibrosis. The sale was held last Saturday and offered a variety of Christmas gift ideas.

Adding a special spirit of goodwill and caring, the Salvation

Army Band will also be featured at this year's festival. And Santa has promised to drop in and wish everyone a Merry Christmas en route to the North Pole.

Following the entertainment, residents are invited to visit local merchants and get a jump on Christmas shopping, with stores open until 9 p.m. So come out and join the community for an evening of fun for all the family.
