

Re-examine WCB position: Reader

ates at less than 100 per cent efficiency. Wouldn't an employee work better in a workplace knowing that in the event of an accident/injury he/she is fully protected by the WCB backed by their employer's contributions?

3. The chronic stress entitlement is something that the labour movement has been fighting for a long time. It wasn't until recently that the Workers' Compensation Board has recognized stress (chronic and critical incident stress) as a workplace disease. If a workplace is employee friendly, and not a poisoned environment, workplace stress will be low and therefore not a real concern.

It should also be noted that even though chronic stress is recognized by WCB it is not something that is easily proven and therefore something that is not compensable on a regular basis. I therefore cannot see how this could lead to "further system abuse."

In closing, I would like to say that I hope the Whitchurch-Stouffville Chamber of Commerce and anyone else that is opposing the proposed legislation take a moment to re-evaluate their stance. Ontario's best resource is its people.

Should we not support them?
