Library has the recipe for a good cookbook

What makes a good cookbook?

Well, samples included would be nice or at the very least, some sort of scratch and sniff. However, it seems that the best that can be done is to have photographs.

Big, beautiful, colour photos. Photos that make a person drool and head for the grocery store.

Cookbooks is one of the library's strong points.

We have quite an assortment, from the familiar home cooking to the exotic cooking of various countries.

Cooking for family. Cooking for guests. Vegetarian cooking (Ah - those Moosewood cookbooks). Barbecue and Grilling, Fish and Vegetables - Desserts.

Drop into the library and check out a few delectables, such as: Skillet Suppers, by Andrea Chesman; Ten Dinner Parties for Two, by Frances Bissell; Cooking with Master Chefs, by Julia Child; The Ultimate Chocolate Book, by Robert Lambert; Classical Canadian Recipes, by Margo Oliver.

Stop by the library today for any of the above titles or any of the others available.

Babysitting course set to begin

Looking for a summer job? One of the few areas that are always expanding is the child-care 'industry.' Why not try babysitting as a way to earn some money this year?

Registrations are still available for the babysitting course hosted by the Whitchurch-Stouffville Public Library.

Registrations also available for the preschool story hour ($30 fee) and musical discoveries programs ($40 fee).

These eight-week programs start mid-April.

Children registered in the preschool programs must be 3-5 years old while registrants in the babysitting course must be at least 12 years old.
