FOXFIRE EQUESTRIAN CENTRE

Dust off your boots, pull on your most comfortable jeans and get ready for an adventure aboard the pony express.

Your introduction into the horse world can be as easy as driving to Durham 23 and the Wagg Road. Your first riding lesson should be fun but informative. Professional instruction can work wonders for your confidence and ability and also help to overcome fears and other hurdles that a self-taught rider may take months to conquer.

For your first lesson you should wear jeans or comfortable pants, boots, with a flat sole and a low heel and layered upper body wear (to take off as you warm up). A helmet will be provided for you at the farm. It is not necessary to rush out and purchase clothes and equipment until you see if this is a sport you wish to pursue. Once you are committed your family and friends will never be stuck for gift ideas for you again! Don't be afraid to talk to your instructor as to what you want out of your lessons. Maybe you wish to learn to ride well enough to go out on an enjoyable trail ride or perhaps you plan to continue riding to a competitive level or you want to ride just for the fun of it. If you are contemplating buying a horse, taking lessons and learning to ride is an excellent way to help make that decision. Whatever your goals, we will try to accommodate you and make you feel at home on the range.

Patti and Garry Buchta would like to invite you to visit them at Foxfire Farms. We cater to the beginner rider as well as the seasoned equestrian. Our qualified professional instructors can provide all levels of lessons. We teach to the English and Western riding any day or evening of the week. We also host children's birthday parties.
