Bob Ancheril

Before his vanishing act last summer, former Ward 5 councillor Bob Ancheril had become an articulate spokesman for the local business community. As owner and operator of Ancheril's Fine Shoes, he experienced first hand the frustrations and problems of fellow merchants in the downtown area and worked diligently to address their concerns. The councillor's effectiveness increased as he gained experience, a fact noted by Tribune reporter Tracy Kibble who dubbed Ancheril Most Improved Politician. Ancheril suggested extending the present BIA to encompass the entire length of Main Street, from Hwy 48 to Hwy 47. He saw the coming of the York-Durham Heritage Railway as an asset for future economic growth, but cautioned that retailers would have to provide an environment which would entice visitors to the area. After his store closed in February, his attendance at meetings waned and Ancheril was well on the way to losing his seat as a result of absenteeism.

Harry Bowes

No one could accuse Whitchurch-Stouffville public school trustee Harry Bowes of being a fly-by-nighter. The veteran politician chalked up his ninth term on the York Region Board of Education in November's election. With a total of 19 years to his credit, including six terms as board chairman, Bowes campaigned on his long experience and on fiscal responsibility. His dedication cannot be faulted; he is always accessible and somehow manages to appear at almost every public school event throughout the year, from Christmas concerts to parent teacher meetings. He is proud of the board's record on zero tolerance for violence in schools, noting that York Region was ahead of the Toronto and Scarborough boards in implementing a safety program. Bowes also points to the fact that York students were shown to be above the national average academically. These results, he said, can be used as a base on which to continue improving the curriculum and teaching methods used in the region's schools.
