

ST Student entrepreneurs ready for challenges

LEARNING ON THE JOB
Students from Gay Eastman's entrepreneurial class at Stouffville District Secondary School will be gaining first hand work experience this spring.

"Last year we only had six students go out into the community and do a partnership-based project with the figure skating program," said Eastman.

"The rest (of the class) stayed in the school and did things inside. This year, all the kids want to go out, and we have given them a choice of three projects to work on."

The first is the Whitchurch-Stouffville Chamber of Commerce Directory, the second is a fashion show and the third is designing flyers for local business people, she said.

Although students from last year's class ran their own fashion show in 1994, plans had to be drastically scaled down as a result of a teachers' work to rule.

This year, however, it will be a major event involving the community as well as the students and will be held in the evening, Eastman said.

"And we have a lot of businesses that would like us to design flyers for them, so every kid is now doing a partnership project."

Six OAC students from last year's class will be assisting as leaders in the 1995 program as part of their administrative studies course.

"I thought it would be nice for Stouffville to know that there's a very big program happening at the high school that's involving at least 41 students in a brand new type of educational project. I wrote to the Ministry of Economic Development and told them all about my program and they gave me a grant which the board of education will match."

It will be a major undertaking for Eastman, the adults who will be helping her run it and her students, and community support will be a vital element in its success.

AFFAIR OF THE HEART

As part of its Person to Person Campaign for Heart and Stroke

Needy children benefit from community generosity

To the Editor,

The managers and volunteers at the Care and Share Shoppe wish to express our appreciation for the coverage which you gave to our school kit collection project before Christmas.

Thanks to an outpouring of generosity on the part of this community, enough cash and school supplies were delivered to our store to fill almost 120 school kits.

These kits will be distributed by Mennonite Central Committee to needy children in the countries of Egypt and Iraq.

A big thank you to all who have shared with us again in helping others.
