FOCUS ON FAMILY

Violence and crime have too much exposure on the silver screen

Question: Would you comment on the violence in our society at large and the forces which are propelling it? What do you think should be done about it?

Dr. Dobson: There are few subjects that cause me greater concern than the exposure being given to crime and violence today.

A squadron of Los Angeles police cornered a desperate gunman in a residential area of the community. The fugitive had barricaded himself in a small house and held three juvenile hostages inside. Television crews were on hand to photograph one of the children, a teenage boy, as he was forced outside and then shot in the head by his abductor. The pathetic young victim died on the sidewalk in a pool of his own blood. I sat stunned, literally sick to my stomach, while the drama was broadcast in full color. A flood of emotions ran through my mind as I gazed into the immobile, unfocused eyes of the dying adolescent. Mixed with deep pity and remorse was a sudden outpouring of indignation - a revulsion that had been accumulating for years. I was angry at the profiteers who have nurtured violence in our society and at those millions who seem to thrive on it. I was angry at movie producers like Sam Peckinpah, who have smear blood and guts all over the silver screen. I was angry at theatre patrons for demanding a dozen disembowelments per hour in their visual entertainment. I was angry at television networks for giving us continuous police stories, with their guns and silly automobile chases and karate chops and SWAT teams. And I was particularly angry at the pathetic system of North American justice which makes crime so profitable and punishment so improbable.
