Hydroponic drug lab discovery prompts council probe into industrial unit usage

By JOAN RANSBERRY
Staff Reporter

The discovery of a large hydroponic illegal drug operation on Ringwood Drive has triggered a call for a review of Stouffville's industrial units.

On Tuesday, Stouffville council asked staff to draft a list of the uses in the units on Ringwood Drive as well as at other industrial condominium units in town.

Councillor Ivanka Bradley said the town should know what kind of businesses are being carried out in the industrial parks.

Also, Bradley said the town ought to know if anyone is using an industrial unit as a place of residence. "We have to make sure the businesses are compatible and that the (industrial) units are not being used for residential," she said.

The local councillor said she was alarmed to learn that someone was living in the midst of an indoor marijuana farm at 100 Ringwood Dr.

Last week, police arrest two men in connection with the $500,000 drug bust. Meanwhile, the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police have just reported that communities across the country are experiencing a dramatic increase in commercial hydroponic marijuana growing operations.

Racing criminal charges in Stouffville's sting are Charles (Chuck) Michael Way, 45, of 100 Ringwood Dr. and William Dunn, 40, of 498 Eastern Ave., Toronto. Both men are members of the Par-a-dise Riders, a motorcycle gang, police said. Way is a parolee having been released from federal prison after serving a term for manslaughter in connection with the shooting death of a woman.

Third man nabbed in pot bust

By ROGER BELGRAVE
Staff Reporter

Police have arrested a third man in connection with a large-scale marijuana farm uncovered last week.

Last Wednesday, police raided a Ringwood Drive industrial unit and seized $500,000 in marijuana.

The industrial unit had been transformed into a sophisticated hydroponic laboratory for cultivating the illegal narcotic.

Two men were arrested at the scene and a warrant issued for a third.

Monday morning, police arrested 43-year-old Tero Rampanen of Port Perry.

A court appearance had been scheduled for later that day.
