

BACK TO SCHOOL

Test-taking time coming

The lazy days of summer are coming to an end and kids are beginning to trade in their bathing suits for book bags.

When the school bell rings at back-to-school season, students and their parents are turning to organizational tools like student planners to help them organize their hectic schedules.

Mead Educational Planners offers tips for taking school tests.

Before the test - The best preparation for a test is to study as you go along. Avoid cramming by starting to study for a test on the first day of class. It is more important to concentrate on the information you know, rather than worrying about what you don't know. Lastly, relax before an exam.

During the test - Remember to read all of the instructions before starting the test. Each question should be read completely before it is answered. Concentrate on one question at a time. Answer the questions you know first and go back to the ones you did not answer later.

After the test - It is important to remain confident even if your first attempt was not perfect. Measure your success by how much you have improved over past performances. Don't be afraid to ask the teacher for help.

Be positive - Motivate yourself by getting involved with the subject. Learn how a subject relates to you and your interests.

Keep these tips in mind when helping your child deal with the pressures of a new school year.
