

Squirts win close ball game and title

Vandorf's Jack's Landscaping squirt boys team won a pressure-packed 13-12 victory over a determined Barkey's Auto Auction (Claremont) team to take the title at the recent Whitchurch-Stouffville Softball Association (WSSA) house-league championships at the town park.

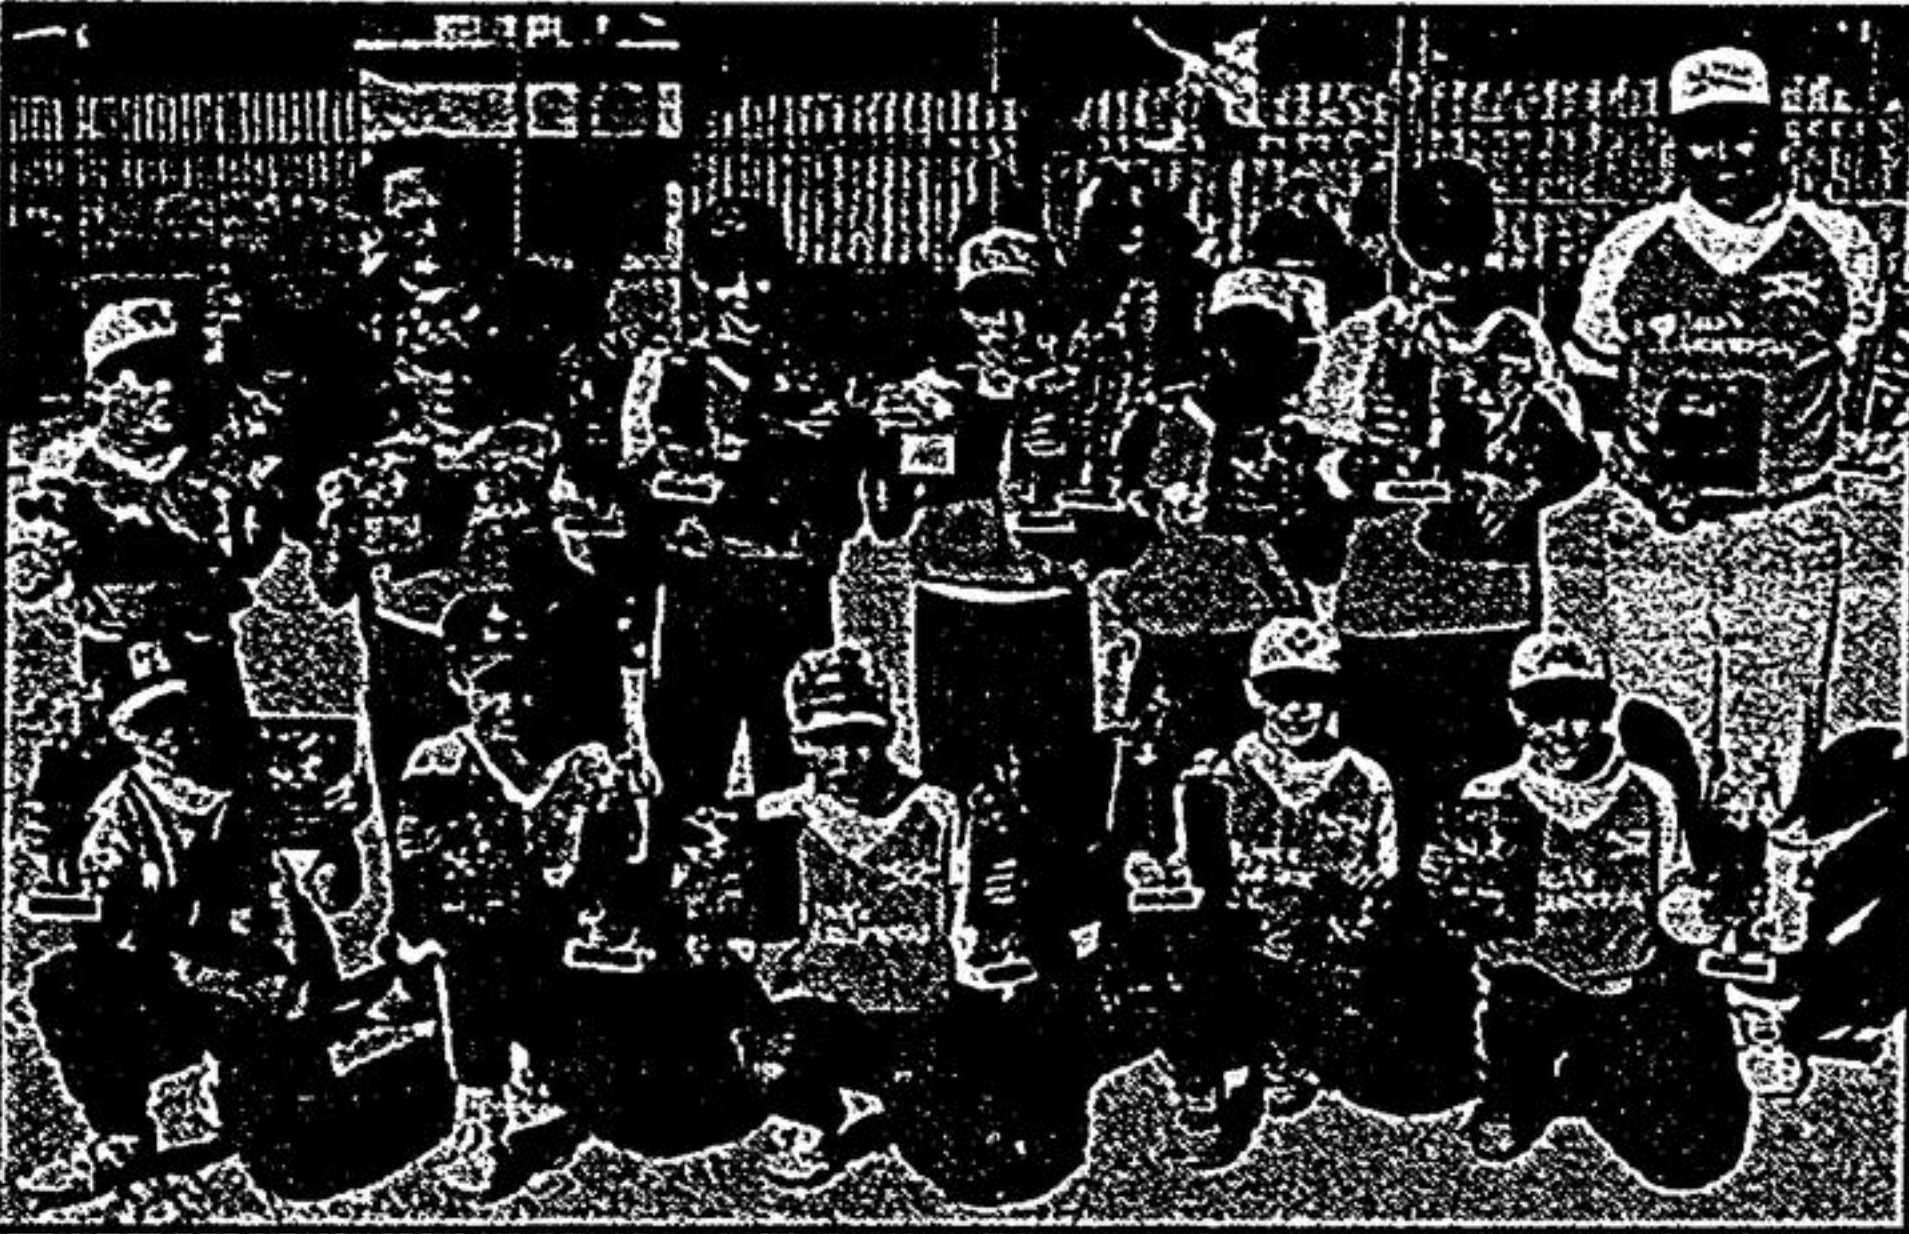

Pitcher Paul Statchuk struck out the final batter of the game to preserve the victory for the Vandorf crew.

Jeff and Jake DeFerrari anchored the Vandorf defence, with Jeff swatting two home runs, one a grand slam, during the tournament. Jake also homered, while batting at an impressive .910 clip.

Andrew Frank bashed a homer, while using his speed on the basepaths. Blake Allan had a key double. Mike Cornacchia threw out over 70 per cent of would-be base stealers. Cameron O'Neill and Jason Carmichael made strong contributions in their first year of organized ball. Ryan Bonnar batted well and was aggressive on the base paths. Justin Cheshire played outstanding utility infield. Marc Fowles pitched well.

Spirit unlikely place for Reesor

end of this week where I'm going to play.

Reesor, who had 54 points with the Pickering Panthers of the Metro Junior Hockey League (tier 11 Junior A) said he might consider a return to tier 11 Junior A, but that the chances of him suiting up with the Spirit are slim. "I wouldn't say it's impossible, but it's unlikely," he said, adding that the only way a return to tier 11 Junior A might be beneficial for him would be if he were to have an outstanding season with a top ranked team.

Question: What is the most common error made by parents in disciplining their children?

Dr. Dobson: In my opinion, it is the inappropriate use of anger. There is no more ineffective method of influencing human beings (of all ages) than the use of irritation and anger. Nevertheless, most adults rely primarily on their own emotional response to secure the cooperation of children.

Consider your own motivational system. Suppose you are driving your automobile home from work this evening, and you exceed the speed limit by 40 miles per hour. Standing on the street corner is a lone policeman who stands on the curb and screams insults as you speed past.

His anger would achieve little except to make him appear comical and foolish.

On the other hand, nothing influences the motorist more than being pulled over by a dignified, courteous patrolman.

"Sir," he says firmly, but politely, "our radar unit indicates you were traveling 65 miles per hour in a 25-mile per hour zone. May I see your driver's license, please?"

He has revealed no hostility and offers no criticisms, yet you immediately go to pieces. You fumble nervously to locate the small document in your wallet.

Disciplinary action influences behavior; anger does not. I am convinced that adult anger produces a destructive kind of disrespect in the minds of our children. They perceive our frustration is caused by our inability to control the situation. We represent justice to them, yet we're on the verge of tears as we flail the air with our hands and shout empty threats and warnings.

I am not recommending that parents and teachers conceal their legitimate emotions from their children. There are times when children become insulting or disobedient, and our irritation is entirely appropriate. In fact, it should be revealed or else we appear phony and unreal.
