Goods perform at Harvest Fest concert

The fox will be on the run at the Stouffville Country Market Sunday, Oct. 15 as the Goods bring their act to town for an afternoon concert.

Council gave its approval Tuesday night for the event, which is to be held in conjunction with the second annual Harvest Fest scheduled for the day before in Stouffville's down town area. The Aurora-based band, formerly known as the Good Brothers, has been playing its country rock-bluegrass music for the past 20 years. They have performed on stage with the likes of the Grateful Dead, the Doobie Brothers, Alabama and Roy Orbison. The Goods feature the twin brother tandem of Bruce and Brian Good. The duo have been joined recently by Bruce's son Travis, who sings lead on a new single just released by the group, "Don't Know Much About Love".

The Goods' most recent album release is called "So Many Roads".
