Police to investigate injury to elderly hospital patient

By JULIE CASPERSEN
Staff Reporter

Police have been called in to investigate a possible assault in the psychiatric ward at Markham Stouffville Hospital.

Hospital staff found an elderly man lying on the floor in the ward's lunch room in the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 17.

Police said he had struck his head on the floor and was in critical condition.

On Friday afternoon, police were called in as a precaution, said investigating officer Det. Gary Miner.

Miner said the man, who is 86, suffers from Alzheimer's disease.

He is not able to tell police how he sustained the injury.

He might have fallen on his own, bumped into another patient accidentally, or been shoved deliberately by another psychiatric patient.

"We have to determine if this was an intentional act or an accidental act," Miner said.
