Scrimmages, award-winning nights with a developed time list, activities for people of all ages and an in-cabin entertainment system are some of the reasons why Celebrity Cruises is rated a five-star cruise line.

The ships — the Galaxy, Century, Horizon, Zenith and Meridian — leave from different ports and sail to such destinations as Alaska, Key West, Montego Bay, Grand Cayman, Glacier Bay, Ketchikan, Acapulco, Puerto Caldera and others.

With the launching of its newest ships, the Galaxy and Century, people can purchase tickets for shore excursions right from their interactive television system. The system is part of the new Celebrity Network that allows people to receive updates about activities on the ship, access information from the ship's navigational system to determine the exact location of the ship and distance to the next destination. They can also order room service at a specific time from an on-screen menu, purchase merchandise from virtual shops that will be delivered to their home after the cruise, book an appointment for the AquaSpa and a lot more. Celebrity is in the process of adding this newest technology to the rest of its ships.

There is something for everyone on board — from the two-year-olds who sail the waters free, up to the teenagers.

The youngest guests have their own clubhouse called the Shipmates Fun Factory, where children can play on free-standing giant animals. A colorful softball pit is in one corner and in another, children can watch movies or put on plays on a stage. There are also shelves overflowing with toys and games and a quiet reading area for those who like to snuggle up with a book.

Anyone who is interested in the newest technology can enter the Century and the Galaxy's Sony Wonder — an entertainment exhibit which allows guests to explore the digital world on Sony personal computers equipped with CD-ROMS and modems.

If people can't find their children, it might be because they are in Cyberspace, a room that is filled with the latest video games.

Those who have a more quiet and relaxing vacation in mind can visit the ship's AquaSpa. The spa offers a wide variety of stress-reducing services including body or aromatherapy massages, deep cleaning facials, manicures, as well as personal fitness training sessions.

When people get tired of the activities, they can retire to the comfort of their private staterooms — the largest at sea.

"Celebrity Cruises is a five star cruise line at a valuable price and we have maintained this high level for a number of years," says Elizabeth Akey, district sales manager for Eastern Canada.

The cruise line was awarded the Author's Award for top value from Fielding Cruises 1995, a prestigious Five-Star rating by Berlitz, top honors in cruising for the World Ocean & Cruise Liner Society, the highest rating in cruise category from the Ocean & Cruise News reader survey and the International Cruise Passenger Association's Cruise Line of the Year award. Celebrity has also been rated one of the top 10 cruise lines by readers of Travel & Leisure magazine.

Celebrity Cruises is represented in Canada by Encore Cruises, Canada's only tour operator exclusively selling cruises. Encore offers the convenience of Canadian dollar pricing and airfare from 13 Canadian gateways. Reservations can be made through Main Street Travel in Markham.
