Amy Huleatt finishes off snowboarding season with 15th place effort at nationals

Amy Huleatt put the cap on an impressive season by finishing 15th in the country at the recent Canadian Snowboarding Championships in British Columbia.

The 18-year-old Claremont resident was competing in the women's open category, which included the top 37 female snowboarders in the country.

The event took place at Big White Resort, near Kelowna.

Huleatt, who won the open class crown at this year's Ontario championships in February, is now ranked eighth overall in Canada based on total points accumulated during the 1996-97 season.

She was 19th in the 17-18 year old half pipe event at the world championships in Finland in March, helping the Canadian team to the overall title.

Huleatt plans to spend part of the early summer working on her technique at Whistler Mountain in B.C., where she hopes to draw the attention of national team officials.
