Spirit announce spring tryout camp on May 31

off-ice business.

He said he should have at least one assistant coach named by the end of this week, with another to follow.

Larmer said there should be over 85 players in attendance when the team holds its spring tryout camp from May 31 to June 1 at the Rec Centre's second ice pad.

The camp is open to any junior aged players wishing to try out for the squad.

However, players must register prior to the camp.

Larmer said while most Junior A teams hold spring camps to get a look at their rookie prospects, this one will be for all players.

"Any time you win eight games and lose 42, no one's job is safe," he said.

Larmer expects to see around 10 players from last year's team at the camp.

The players will be split into five teams, with each squad holding a practice before playing three games to prove what they can do.

The Spirit entered a team consisting largely of Stouffville area players in a Junior A prospects tournament in Etobicoke the weekend of May 2-4.

The squad split its four games played, and Larmer was pleased with the show of local talent.

"Brad Clubine had seven points in four games. Ryan King and Rob Spytz looked good, and Kyle Harrison, a defenceman with the midget Clippers, had a good weekend too," he observed.

Players interested in attending the Spirit spring camp should contact Larmer at 640-9841.

SAHL sign up for new season set for June 5

The Stouffville Amateur Hockey League is opening its doors to new players as it pares down to two age divisions for the 1997-98 campaign.

The men's league is to eliminate its 30 and over age division, with all players fitting into either the 20 and over group or the 40 and over flight.

The opening of the second ice pad has meant additional ice time has been granted to the league, leaving openings for new and old players, as well as those on the waiting list.

All players not currently playing in the league must register at Boyd's Source for Sport (5402 Main St.) or at Schell Lumber (33 Edward St.) to become eligible for the annual draft, which is scheduled to take place June 5 at the Stouffville Legion.
