Tribune's cookie campaign spiced up election coverage

Dear Editor,

We would like to express our thanks and appreciation to everyone who helped make Stouffville's first Cookie Election a huge success.

The Tribune's Joan Ransberry approached us with the idea of putting a little fun and flavor into our local election, and with her great idea and the patriotic decorations of Canadian flags and balloons provided by Lynda Sargeant of Lindy's Floral Boutique the Heritage Ice Cream Parlour and Deli was turned into a cookie campaign office - and the race was on.

A special acknowledgment to Joan and the Stouffville Tribune for their cookie election coverage.

Also, to the candidates who participated with enthusiasm, humour and sportsmanship and to all the cookie voters of Stouffville.

Last, but not least, recognition goes to Bentley the potbelly pig, who came out and made his own party/cookie selection by choosing his favorite (Liberal-oatmeal-raisin), which ultimately turned out to be the winning party.

Thanks Stouffville.

You're a great cookie town to live in.

Ross and Wendy Cowie

ONCE
WHAT IT IS,
YOU'LL
ONE.

IT'S CALLED A TRANSPONDER. It's a high-tech, state-of-the-art communications device that will make traffic tie-ups a thing of the past. A wallet-sized electronic transmitter, installed on the inside of the windshield behind the rear view mirror of your vehicle, the transponder, lets you drive unhassled and unhindered on North America's first all-electronic toll road, the all-new, multi-lane, ETR 407 Express Toll Route.

The transponder tells the ETR's overhead communication system the time and point of your entry and exit. Then, the system bills you monthly for the kilometres you actually drive*.

Thanks to the ETR technology, you sail along the ETR, saving time and stress. No toll booths hold you up. No traffic holdups slow you down. And with 29 major interchanges, you zip across town, around town and into town.

When completed, the ETR will run 69 kilometres from Highway 403 in Oakville to Highway 48 in Markham. The first 36 kilometres from Highway 410 in Brampton to Highway 404 in Markham is now open. You can test drive it free for a limited time without a transponder. If you already have your transponder, install it now and try it out, and you could win a daily prize or a grand prize.

Now that you know what a transponder is, try the ETR out free and then sign up for one.

Find out more. Call our Customer Service Information line 1-888-407-0407, for local calls, (905)-264-5330, fax us at 905-264-5315, or visit our website on the Internet at www.407etr.com, or write to us at 407 ETR, P.O. Box 6300, Concord STN. Main, Concord, ON L4K 4Y3.

*If you don't have a transponder, a licence plate recognition system captures a video image of your plate and bills the registered plate owner the per kilometre toll charge plus an extra $1 toll per trip to cover additional processing costs.
