

Drop by the library and reserve an old favourite or new release

Borrowing a book by your favourite author must be the best part of visiting the library. Sometimes you discover a title that you just have to buy for your own collection, or would make a nice gift for a friend.

A few years ago there was a young patron who discovered just such a book. This child took every opportunity to borrow the book. It became a family favourite but unfortunately the title was out of print.

Now, a few years later, the book is being reprinted. Unfortunately, memories being what they are, the name of the child who so loved this book escapes us. So if Pretzel rings a bell, and the story still has meaning to you, you can now buy Pretzel, by Margret Rey.

Go to your local book dealer and if need be, it can be ordered in paperback or hardcover.

While on the topic of books coming out, here's a sneak preview of what autumn has in store for us.

Readers of Stephen King's Dark Towers series will be happy to see that the fourth will be available in November. This was the series people often referred to as the Gunslinger series, although that was the name of the first book. The fourth book will be Wizard and Glass.

Another series is Larry McMurtry's Comanche Moon which will finish

Lonesome Dove. Diane Mott Davidson cooks up another culinary mystery in The Grilling Season.

Favourite authors also include Catherine Cookson's The Branded Man; Sidney Sheldon's Best Laid Plans; Clive Cussler's Flood Tide; Danielle Steel's The Ghost; and Robert Ludlum's The Matarese Countdown.

Books by Canadian writers are also a welcome sight, such as L.R. Wright's Acts of Murder, Mordecai Richler's Barney's Version, and Nino Ricci's Where She Has Gone. Reserve your favourites at the front desk.
