

New web site will post current and upcoming events

Charlotte, E.B. White's literate spider, would likely be lost for words to learn that Whitchurch-Stouffville Library has a web site—<http://www.itree.com/library/whichch/index.html>

This jumble of letters and symbols might be gobblede-gook to folk still coping with postal codes but, in the computer world, it's a web address and it's the place where the library has attached its first tentative threads to the Internet.

The site is set up to display information about the library and The Latcham Gallery.

We hope to keep it topical so that visitors will be able to zero in on current and upcoming events.

The library offers a large selection of books to ease the way into computerization and cyberspace. The most popular books are the ones from the two self-help series: For Busy People and For Dummies.

The computer is the theme of many new publications (even in espionage fiction where it seems to have taken over from the communists as adversary), so it was quite an anachronistic jolt to see somebre little book called A People Apart displayed beside MAC for Dummies and Internet for Busy People on the new non-fiction shelf last week.

People Apart is a documentary about the Old Order Mennonites who still live in communities in Ontario that reject much of the modern world and its technologies.

Many still use horse-drawn equipment on their farms and their clothing has changed little in the past 100 years.

The story, written by Kathleen Kenna, is illustrated with black and white photographs taken in Elmira and Saint Jacob's, Ontario.

The book is not only a reminder of Stouffville's own Mennonite roots but of a simpler, less hectic way of life when web sites could be easily mastered with a feather duster.
