

Hospital hosts Breast Health Awareness Day Oct. 6

Welcome to Markham Stouffville Hospital's Partners in Wellness.

This new monthly column will focus on educating and enhancing community awareness on health and wellness topics and the availability of local and regional health care programs and services.

As a key community resource to health care services, we are excited about the opportunity to work with the Economist & Sun and The Tribune as a vital link between the community and individuals we serve.

Each column will include topics such as: community related health issues, upcoming events, new programs and services, healthcare partnerships and profiles on community physicians.

This month's topic is Breast Health Awareness.

Did you know that, "During their lifetime, one in nine women are expected to develop breast cancer," according to the National Cancer Institute of Canada.

This disease touches all of us. We may not be the one directly affected, but we all know someone, a mother, sister, colleague or friend that has been affected by this disease.

Health care institutions and community service providers are working together to enhance the health and wellness of the communities they serve.

These partnerships provide information to the public not only on provision of care, but also on health promotion and illness prevention. Our goal is to increase awareness of breast health and the support systems available within our province.

One of the ways the hospital is building community awareness is by hosting its second annual Breast Health Awareness Day, on Monday, Oct. 6, from 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the hospital auditorium.

This action filled day will focus on breast health awareness issues, and include two speaker panels, booths, draws and displays which will all provide information and education.

The day is open to the public and free of charge.

All interested people are invited to join us and learn more about the facts by attending the Markham Stouffville Hospital Breast Health Awareness Day. For information please call 472-7373 ext. 3984.

If you would like information on breast cancer in Ontario, the Breast Cancer Info Exchange Project is designed to inform Ontarians about breast cancer activities across the province. For a copy of their free newsletter call 416-480-5899.

If you have a topic or subject you would like addressed please contact Pam Brodie, director of marketing at Markham Stouffville Hospital, at 472-7032.
