Museum has programs for strike-bound students

COMMUNITY

An "A-Muse-ing Camp" is being offered at the Whitchurch-Stouffville Museum, 14732 Woodbine Ave., three kilometres north of Bloomington Road in historic hamlet of Vandorf.

Starting this week, the Whitchurch-Stouffville Museum will be offering a day camp program for the duration of the teachers' strike, for children six to 14 years.

Each day will feature curriculum-related lessons in an authentic turn-of-the-century classroom, hands-on heritage activities including crafts and 19th century lifeskills, games and outdoor play activities - all lead by trained educational staff.

The fee is $20 per child per day. The museum will be open to receive children at 7:30 am. with organized activities getting underway at 9 a.m. Children must provide their own lunch and be picked up by 6 p.m.

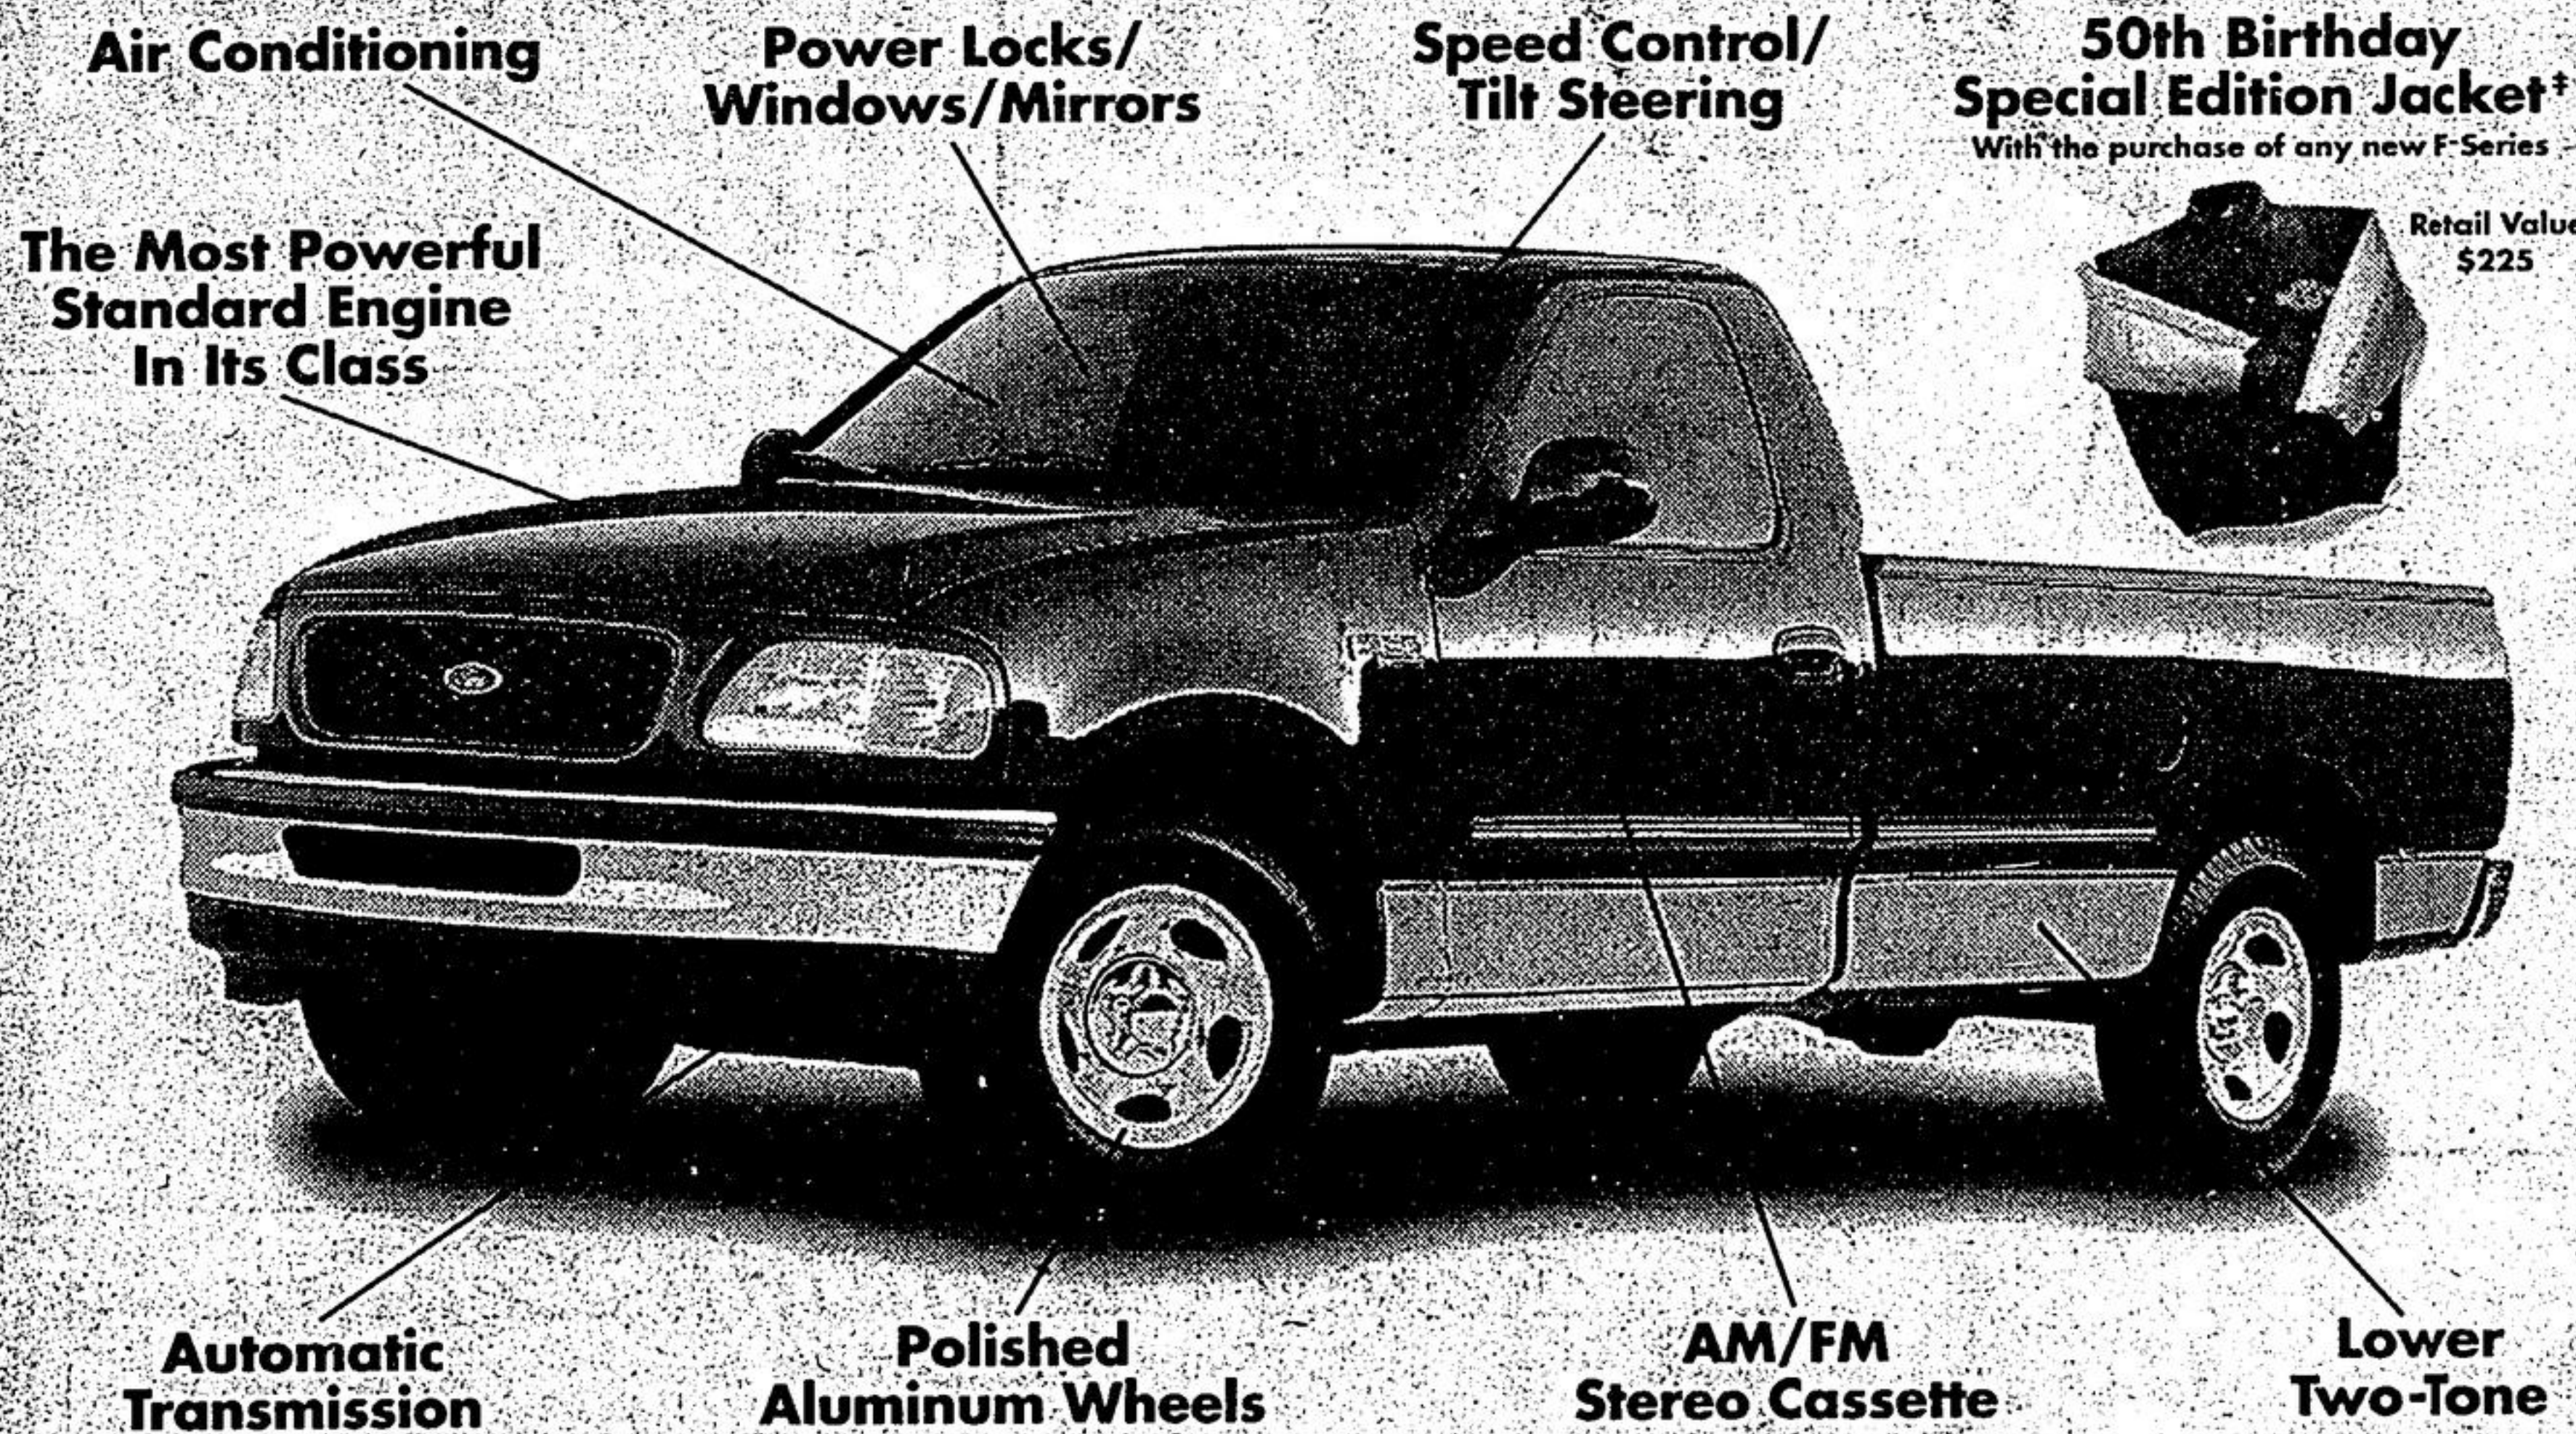

Please register your child by leaving a message on the museum's answering machine. Staff will pick up the messages on Sunday evening.

The museum's phone number is 727-8954. For toll-free calling in York Region, dial (416) 213-0900, and then at the tone dial (905) 727-8954.
