Smokers challenged to quit for 24 hours on Weedless Wednesday

smoking even though they are aware of the risks.
"When you speak to some of them, they definitely know," she said. "Unfortunately it doesn't seem to make a difference."
Second-hand smoke continues to be a major concern as studies have shown an increase in the risk of lung cancer among non-smokers married to cigarette smokers.

York Region's Health Services department encourages residents to protect their children's health, as well as their own, by adopting a no-smoking policy within the home.

Concerned over the fact that cigarette smoke moves quickly through the house and it takes more than three hours to clear 95 per cent of the smoke from one cigarette, the Health Services department wants to warn residents that second-hand smoke is especially dangerous for children.

Children breathe at a more rapid rate than adults and because they have smaller lungs, the effects of second-hand smoke are intensified in young children who are exposed to cigarette smoke regularly. In pregnant women, second-hand smoke decreases the baby's oxygen supply.

In honor of National Non-Smoking Week, the Health Services department is encouraging parents to have their children draw pictures of their smoke-free home and hang it on the fridge or front window of the home.

By calling the York Region Health Services department, parents can receive a photoframe magnet in which they can place their child's picture. The frame's caption reads "Picture Me in a Smoke-Free Home" and is a positive reminder of the dangers of second-hand smoke.

During 1997, the Cancer Society estimates 130,800 new cancer cases were diagnosed across the country and 60,700 Canadians died of cancer. Although breast and prostate are the most frequently types of diagnosed cancers in this country, lung cancer remains the leading cause of cancer death.

Weedless Wednesday is Jan. 21 and the Cancer Society is encouraging regular smokers to accept their challenge of going the entire day without a cigarette.

For more information on non-smoking week or on how to quit smoking, contact the Canadian Cancer Society locally at 294-5925 or the Cancer Information Service at 1-888-939-3333.

To obtain a free photoframe magnet and pamphlet providing practical tips on how to make your home smoke-free, contact the Health Connection at 895-4511.
