

Aphasia Centre seeks helpers

The York-Durham Aphasia Centre is recruiting volunteers for its winter and spring sessions.

The non-profit community agency specializes in group programs for adults with aphasia or difficulty speaking, understanding, reading or writing caused by a brain injury due to stroke or trauma.

Partly funded by the province, the centre works closely with area hospitals and Community Care Access Centres. It is recognized internationally for its unique approach in partnering trained volunteers with clients to provide opportunities for adult conversation, social links and friendships.

Volunteers are needed as communication partners in the Stouffville program for residents of Stouffville, Uxbridge, Markham, Thornhill and Pickering. Volunteers are asked to commit to either the morning program (9 a.m. to 12 p.m.) or the afternoon program (12:30 to 3:30 p.m.).

For details call Bonnie Morrison, Program Support, at 642-2053. Men and women of all ages are welcome.
