

Kids Can Free The Children offers leadership program

Kids Can Free The Children, the international charitable children's organization, is sponsoring a Summer Leadership Program for Youth.

The program will be held throughout July and August of this year. It will seek to equip local young people with the skills in leadership and community involvement which will help them to make a difference in their communities and in the world.

Kids Can Free The Children was founded three years ago, by 12-year-old Craig Kielburger of Thornhill.

It has since grown into an international network of children helping children to become involved in issues which affect them, on a local, national and international level.

Kielburger and other Kids Can Free The Children youth representatives have traveled extensively, to meet other children and hear their stories of poverty and exploitation, as well as to discuss children's issues with world leaders such as Queen Elizabeth, Pope John Paul II, Prime Minister Jean Chretien and American Vice-President Al Gore.

The Summer Leadership Programs for Youth are a unique, character-building opportunity for the young people of York Region aged 10 to 16.

This non-profit venture will be held at MacDonald House, the former home of Group of Seven artist J.E.H. MacDonald, at 121 Centre Street in Thornhill.

Participants will choose one or two week sessions, which will focus on leadership development, human rights issues and community involvement. In their character-building sessions and motivational speakers segments, the programs will help young people to develop self-confidence and have a lot of fun in the process.

Kids Can Free The Children is offering scholarships for some of the young participants, so that everyone will have the opportunity to take part in these programs.
