Prestige Studios: Your wedding photography specialists

When it comes time to selecting a photographer to shoot your wedding, many people make the fatal mistake of asking their friends to handle the job.

The problem with this is often friends don't have the experience nor equipment to handle this once-in-a-lifetime event.

The end results are can be disappointing to the bride and groom.

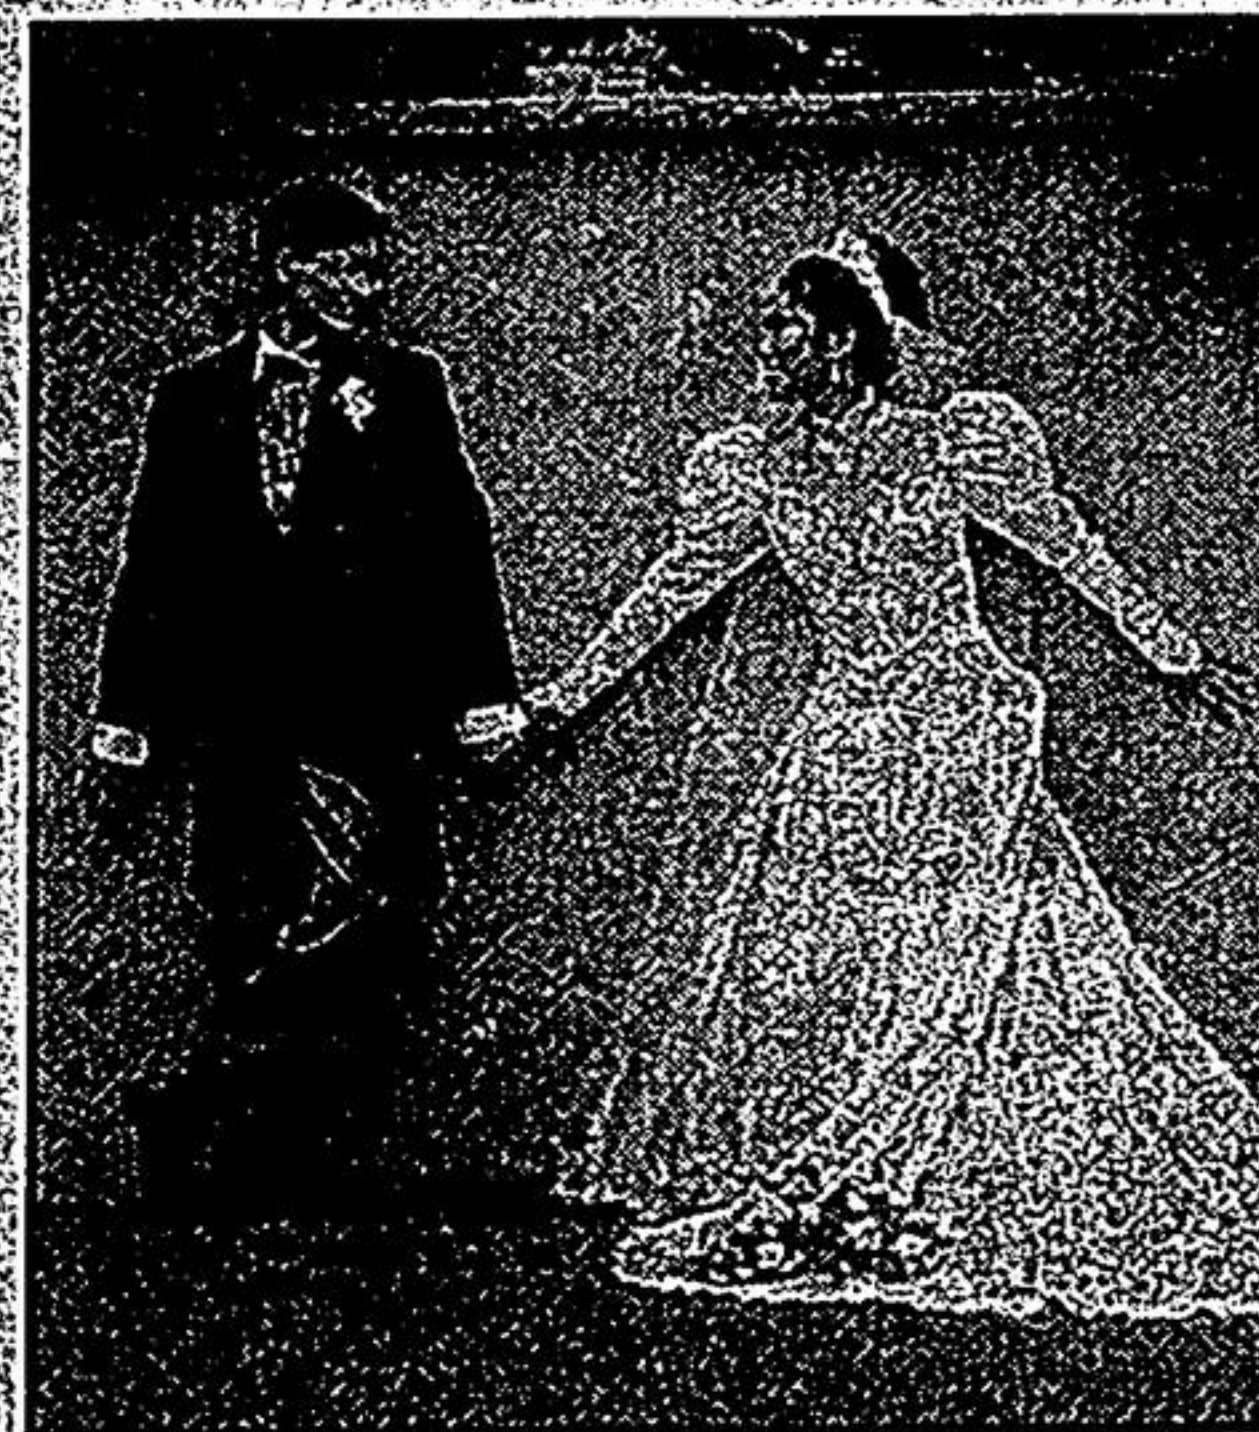

Questions you should ask yourself before selecting a photographer include: Is the person experienced in photographing weddings? Can the photographer work quickly and efficiently to pose large groups of people? Does the photographer have the necessary equipment to handle the types of settings and locations that you might find yourself in on your wedding day?

John Smith of Prestige Studios has been photographing weddings for over 15 years. His vast experience allows him to quickly and efficiently capture the special moments of the day without being obtrusive. And with the many wedding packages that Prestige offers, you'll find there's one to fit any budget.

Prestige Studios is also the first wedding photography studio in Canada to offer Rain Insurance to its clients. This simply means that if you've booked an outdoor location for your photographs and it rains, then the package price will be discounted dramatically. But the best thing is, you'll still get lots of great photos to choose from.

Prestige prides itself on being able to provide the client with personalized service by taking the time necessary to determine the bride and groom's tastes and needs before the wedding, so nothing is left to chance.

The client-oriented service continues long after the wedding with a wide selection of bridal and parent albums, digital Thank You
