The use of excessive water to get out stains may cause mildew

FROM PAGE 23

VOMIT

Sponge with a clean cloth dipped in cold water. After most of the stain has been removed, wash lightly with a mild soap using a clean cloth dipped in warm water.

If odor remains, treat the area with a water and baking soda solution — one cup of tepid water to one teaspoon of baking soda.

Follow by cleaning with another cloth dipped in cold water. If the stain persists, rub gently with a clean cloth moistened with cleaning fluid.

Once a stain sets on your vehicle's upholstery, it is harder to get it out.

INK

This is a difficult stain to remove. Sponge with cool water, work a detergent into it, and rinse. If it persists, try a bit of rubbing alcohol on a wet cloth. If it still persists, it likely will remain permanent. Be careful not to spread the stain with too much alcohol.

LIPSTICK

Lipsticks are made of many different compositions, which in turn make the stain difficult to remove. In some cases, a volatile liquid such as dry-cleaning fluid may remove it. If the stain remains after repeated applications, leave it alone.

BLOOD

Don't use hot water or soap and water, as this will set the stain and make removal impossible. The proper technique involves rubbing the area with a clean cloth soaked in cold water. Repeat until the stain is removed, remembering to turn the cloth so you're using clean material.

GREASE, OIL, BUTTER, CRAYON

Scrape the area with a dull knife. Rub lightly with a cloth soaked in cleaning fluid. Circle toward the center of the stain, eliminating the chance of the stain spreading in size. Remove the excess with a clean blotter and repeat until it no longer transfers to the blotter.

CANDY, CHOCOLATE

Rub the area with a cloth soaked in hot water. If the stain persists, wait until dry and the rub with a bit of cleaning fluid, using a light action. For chocolate, follow this by blotting the area with a clean cloth until the stain no longer transfers to the cloth.

GUM

Harden the gum with ice and then scrape it off with a dull knife. If all the gum cannot be removed, moisten it with cleaning fluid and work it from the fabric with the knife.

The 328iA and the 10Best list go back a long way.

www.bmwautohaus.ca

For the seventh consecutive year, Car and Driver named our BMW 328iA to its 10Best list. The incentives for driving our 328iA are plentiful. An empowered 2.8-litre engine. Dynamic handling. An aesthetically pleasing form. And the approval of automotive connoisseurs.
