ABOUT TOWN

Pastaggio offers authentic homemade Italian food, large portions and excellent prices

Sometimes the most wonderful places to visit are hidden away from everything else, just waiting to be discovered.

Which is the case with Pastaggio Italian Restaurant.

Located at the corner of Laidlaw and Bullock, Pastaggio - from the outside - looks like a square box without character or personality. That opinion changes the moment you step inside.

Painted sea green, the restaurant is absolutely beautiful. Roman columns separate the two rooms that make up the restaurant and two airbrushed murals decorate the walls.

Gold splashed tables, like the ones you would find in European cafes, are set up throughout the restaurant. At night, candle light creates a relaxing glow. Tantalizing aromas of homemade sauces and bread warming makes you feel like you have walked into someone's home. That is the atmosphere that Chef Carol Cassano and her family want to create.

There is a very homey atmosphere (here). Customers are greeted by their first name.

Pastaggio opened its doors in August to provide the people of Markham a place to go for authentic Italian food. Carol makes everything from scratch every morning before the restaurant opens. Customers will always find homemade pastas, thick sauces made with fresh herbs and vegetables, delicious desserts and more.

While Carol prepares the ingredients before hand, all the dishes she creates are made-to-order. And the portions are large.

ABOUT TOWN

Always something new happening at Braised Bull

It's hospitality!
The Braised Bull has earned a well deserved reputation of combining high quality food with friendly and knowledgeable staff.

Guests at the Braised Bull can enjoy the unique South Western atmosphere, large comfortable booths with throw cushions that seat eight to 12, jazz music in the background and "special" boards to read at their leisure.

They feature single malt scotch and cigar combinations, while their non-smoking guests can breath easy because of the high-tech ventilation system.

The fall brings the new menu launch. For lunch or dinner, guests can enjoy the Bull's Famous AAA steaks with shrimp and scallops, a variety of pasta, Southwestern dishes and "Signature Dishes", such as Bay of Fundy Salmon, Aussie Lamb Chops and grilled shellfish & seafood created by executive chef Darl McCallum.

The return of the "Tapas Menu" (served at the bar from 4 to 6 p.m.) serves up little dishes such as Cactus Spikes, satays, shrimp and goat cheese, 12 dishes in all which are under $5.

A variety of children's items are also under $5.

A new addition that has received quick success is the Prime Rib Sundays, that include an appetizer and Yorkshire pudding.

The wine list changes frequently and always includes vintage and consignment wines. An upcoming special treat is the winemaker's dinner, hosted by Mondavi.

There are still some invitations left to purchase. They will include five food courses, each course accompanied by a different wine.

This evening will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 28. Please contact restaurant manager Michelle Ward for further details.

Michelle would like to remind their guests it's never too early to start booking corporate and private booster and Christmas parties.

Several all-inclusive lunch and dinner packages offer selection and price conducive to any budget. And in keeping with the Christmas spirit, The Braised Bull will donate a portion of the money from Christmas parties to local charities.

The Braised Bull would like to welcome their new neighbours from Legacy.

And also wish their hockey teams good luck through the season.

Interested in cooking classes? Contact chef Darl McCallum.

Braised Bull is located at 7750 Markham Rd., just south of 14th Ave.
