Assault charges laid after fight

A pizza spatula was the weapon of choice for one man after a confrontation in a Markham Pizza Pizza store early Saturday morning.

Two men have been charged with assault after the 1:40 a.m. fight between a customer and employee.

Police responded to an "unwanted person call" and when they arrived they found a 23-year-old North York man with a cut on his forehead, said Det. Sgt. Bruce Powley.

The 34-year-old employee told police he had been punched in the head and retaliated by swinging the spatula, police said. He has been charged with assault with a weapon.

The customer is charged with level one assault.
