Nissan is the leader in offering information on the 'net

Car buyers can now find information on Nissans before going to the dealership.

Two websites — one for Nissan-branded vehicles, the other for the company's luxury Infiniti — carries full details on vehicles, specifications, options, colour choices, promotions, inquiries, service programs and warranties — all of which may differ greatly from parallel information offered at sites authored in the U.S.

• www.nissancanada.com — focuses on Nissan-branded cars, mini-vans, pickup trucks and sport utilities.

• www.infiniticanada.com — is new and focuses on Infiniti's luxurious G20, I30 and Q45t sport sedans, plus the QX4 sport utility which employs an industry-leading computer-controlled 4WD system.

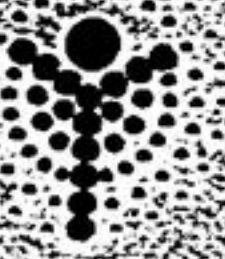

A third Nissan site — to help Canadians choose between leasing and financing — is still being developed.

Nissan is among the auto industry's leaders in using the internet to distribute information to customers and car enthusiasts. The company's other publicly accessible sites include: www.nissan-na.com — offering an over-view of the company's North American and global operations.

The Japanese site at www.nissan.co.jp/NISSAN is devoted to both global and Japanese domestic operations and products. A visit can be a somewhat exotic experience for Canadian car-lovers as virtually none of the featured vehicles are available for sale in North America.

passenger side storage area for wet golf umbrellas or skis. Also found in the Pacifica is a removable golf bag rack that can store up to four sets of golf clubs.

Power is a 3.8-litre V6 with 180 horsepower and 240 pounds/foot of torque. The nose would carry the same egg crate grille and sculpted headlights from the Chrysler LHS luxury sedan.

Down the line is the Plymouth Voyager XG designed for those who like mountain biking, trail riding, water sports and fuel economy.

The XG would be fitted with a 2.5-litre turbo diesel with five-speed manual transaxle and enhanced output of 115 hp and 195 lb/ft of torque. It would return about 33 mpg on the highway, 22 mpg in the city for a combined 28 mpg.

The 15th anniversary edition of Chrysler's minivan.

In keeping with the spirit of those driving it, the sidewindows would have the same blue reflective coating of expensive sunglasses. The look would be enhanced by 17-inch wheels as used by the Plymouth Prowler. Other interior features include a power retractable roof and a removable mobile storage pod that serves as a built-in ice chest and storage drawer.
