

LIVING: Doctor says Sex for Life is essentially a health book

Book tackles male nightmare

tion is subheaded Quick Draw McGraw. The book is also liberally sprinkled with jokes dealing with the often meeting-of-the-battleground between "those men" and their "what's upset her now" female counterparts.

"It's part of my design in providing a book for men that will give them the information in the way that men like it," Saul said.

"It has jokes, it's written in a short, snappy information-packed style."

Throughout its 260-plus pages, Saul constantly lays emphasis on the need for men to consult their family doctors about any variances in their ability to function sexually.

"A simple blood test for testosterone and the doctor will know for sure what is going on," he said.

Saul is also available for consultation or inquiries at (416) 298-1303.

Saul will hold a book signing at Indigo Books in Richmond Hill on April 27 at 7:30 p.m. Sex for Life is also available in some Chapters stores as well as Indigo Books. It is published by Apple Publishing and retails for $26.

COMMUNITY

Social service directory available

The Directory of Community and Social Services in York Region is now available.

With more than 400 listings of groups representing a broad spectrum of services in York Region and Bradford, the directory features detailed profiles of programs and agencies, as well as listings divided by geography and subject.

A media index is also included for agencies planning special events and fundraisers.

Also, a quarterly newsletter, Intersections, is also being offered.

The directory is a valuable resource tool, not only for social service professionals, but for social service students and community members.

Call Community Connections at (416) 651-6102, ext. 1 for details.

Raising bucks for ducks

The Markham Ducks Unlimited Dinner will be held next Wednesday, at Le Parc Meeting Centre, Hwy. 7 and Leslie Street in Markham.

The evening will start at 6 p.m. and tickets are $75 each. This fee entitles the holder to a delicious dinner and a great evening of raffles, silent and live auctions and an opportunity to feel good raising "bucks for the ducks," which will be used to preserve wetlands for future generations to enjoy.

Anyone wishing more information or to purchase tickets can call 640-1424.
