

CALIFORNIA STRAWBERRIES

When we buy berries, our staff 'Disassembles' the pints and checks through them, then reassembles them as overflowing pints of great berries. The result is (a) you seldom get a bad berry and (b) you get lots of good ones - and that they're from California means that they have a flavour edge over those from Florida.

MARINATED BONELESS CHICKEN BREASTS

In our store we sell only free - range chickens. They have an edge in flavour because they run loose and eat what they want. They are processed in a more time-consuming (and expensive) manner in order that this flavour advantage is maintained.

So what do you get when you start with the best chicken and then add one of our superlative homemade marinades? ... a thrill from the grill!

Available in Teriyaki, Texan, Marquerita, BBQ, Zesty Lemon

Police officer helped Swiss Air rescue workers

BY LISA QUEEN
Staff Writer

When SwissAir flight 111 went down over Peggy's Cove last September, area families rushed out in their fishing boats to hunt for survivors.

But the horror that greeted them was beyond imagination. "Residents saw and heard the crash. All they could envision was people who had survived and were waiting to be rescued, like passengers aboard the Titanic. They took blankets and coffee for any survivors," said York Regional Police Const. Duncan Foot. "But when they got out there, there was no one to rescue. It was just body parts."

Eight weeks after the crash, Foot went to Nova Scotia at the request of Health Canada to help counsel the traumatized rescue workers - including police officers, coast guard officials, transportation safety personnel, army civilians and fishermen, many of whom are members of the coast guard auxiliary.

They all had horrible stories to tell, of working up to 16 hours a day retrieving human remains, or trying to identify body parts in the morgue. Of the 229 passengers and flight crew who died, officials only found the partial remains of 11. Often, the body parts they found were horrifying.

Foot, a 13-year veteran officer, is a founding member of the York Region critical incident stress management team, which counsels emergency personnel after traumatic events. He was presented with an award by Health Canada for his work recently. Health Canada was so impressed with Foot's counselling abilities, the agency flew him back to Nova Scotia for a second tour.
