

COMMUNITY SNAPSHOTS: St. James Presbyterian goes green

THUMBING THEIR ROSES

Kim Giles purchases some plants from Bob Breckels last week during the St. James Presbyterian Church's plant sale to raise funds for services. The event included a demonstration by Carol Weir on how to create a garden basket and a silent auction. Experts were on hand to talk about different types of plants and proper care.

Taxpayers still funding airport

York Region taxpayers are going to pay $242,652 this year to help keep Buttonville Airport open.

And the region has agreed to aid the airport in Markham for two additional years if its lease with the town is extended that long.

The region gave Buttonville $200,000 each year from 1992 to 1998, when the privately-owned airfield's $1.5 million annual provincial subsidy was cut off.

The province, however, gave the airport another $1.7 million this spring, along with a warning not to expect more in the future.

NO TO RED LIGHT CAMERAS

York Regional Council says it supports provincial plans for testing red light enforcement cameras — except in York Region.

Installing them costs $250,000 at each high-risk location. Police would also have to step up their enforcement at an equal number of high-risk intersections without cameras and monitor a third set which acts as a placebo by getting a normal level of policing.

The two-year time span of the trial is not adequate to permit recovery of this investment through fine revenues, a staff report concluded.

Council said the region will watch results in any of the municipalities trying the program.
