LIBRARY NEWS: Food books popular take-out at library

Appetite spoiled, but curiosity piqued

In May, more than 100 cookbooks were signed out of the Whitchurch-Stouffville Public Library.

Food is certainly of interest to many people in the community so, hopefully, lots of people saw the book review in the June 26 Globe and Mail.

It's a long review with the headline Food: inglorious food: two new books tell you what's wrong with the genetically engineered foods, and how you can avoid them.

The review itself is a quick introduction to what reviewer Andrew Nikiforuk refers to as "the global biotech revolution assaulting dinner." How appetizing.

Nevertheless, Nikiforuk writes, "you have innocently bought these genetically engineered foods without knowing their origins because the Canadian government doesn't believe in choice."

By now your appetite may be spoiled, but your curiosity is sure to be piqued. Both titles are owned by the library.

Don't forget that you can reserve books that are signed out and staff will call you when it's returned. It's easy to fill out a short reserve form and leave it for the staff. Provide your name, phone number and library card number, and here's the book information:

Unnatural Harvest: How corporate science is secretly altering our food, by Ingeborg Boyens.

Real Food for A Change: Bringing nature, joy and justice to the table, by Wayne Roberts, Rod McRae and Lori Stahlbrand.
