LIBRARY NEWS: Facility slated to close for two days to improve services

Software upgrade prepares for the future

Nothing endures but change. This certainly rings true at the local library these days.

In the last year alone, there have been a number of changes. Internet access was made available to library patrons and CD-ROMs are now part of the library's circulating collection.

Even little changes make a difference. Everyone loves the receipt-type printouts they receive when they sign out items.

Just this past week, another change took place. The old word processing package, WordPerfect 5.1, was replaced with the easier-to-use WordPerfect 9. Lotus 123 and CorelDraw 9 will also be available to the public free of charge.

But there's more. In order to become fully Y2K compliant, the library will be updating the software in its online catalogue. This is a huge task and requires the co-ordination and effort of many people.

In order to accomplish this upgrade, the library will be closed Tuesday, Aug. 17, and Wednesday, Aug. 18.

However, we all know that "the best laid schemes of mice and men, Gang aft a-gley." With this in mind, the library may be closed Thursday, Aug. 19, as well.

The library's drop boxes can be used to return due books during this closure.

The library is viewing this change as a positive step to ensuring quality service in preparation for the future.

This software upgrade is the first step in preparing the library's catalogue for Internet access.

In the future, Whitchurch-Stouffville patrons will be able to search the library catalogue, as well as catalogues of other libraries through the Internet.

With any change there will be a time of acceptance and integration but we know you will continue to show your support and patience.

After all, more change is sure to come.
